been told not to expect any more money for their work inside the U.S.-Mexico border. "I was in a meeting at the Department of Homeland Security where we were told that additional funding is off the table... for detention center expenses," Gutiérrez told BuzzFeed News. "That's a very real message that we're hearing now on the ground: Don't expect additional funding for building more detention centers, for improving conditions in detention centers, for building more showers, because there's no money for it." U.S. Customs and Border Patrol personnel were told not to expect more money for housing migrant children and families, according to a U.S. official who spoke with BuzzFeed News on condition of anonymity. The official said the message was conveyed to agents on the front lines of the U.S.-Mexico border in Texas. Gutiérrez, a member of the House of Representatives' Congressional Hispanic Caucus, told BuzzFeed News he had not had a similar conversation with Border Patrol agents at the facilities. "This is not a message that I've been given. They don't share information with me. They don't like me," he said. "I'm hoping that they do not follow a strategy of keeping information from us," he added. U.S. Customs and Border Patrol has increased their capacity at the border with Mexico by more than 40,000 since the Trump administration enacted a "zero tolerance" policy earlier this year that led to more than 2,400 children being separated from their parents in June. The agency is now asking for $4.5 billion in 2018 funding to expand the number of agents manning the border. A DHS request for a $1.8 billion appropriations bill for 2018 was sent to Capitol Hill this week. Gutiérrez said Thursday that he was "shocked" by the $3,000 each migrant family received to shelter forty-something adult with a daughter in grade school and all of a sudden, I'm feeling like I have to set a good example and do things different than I did when I was her age. This was my second chance at parenthood and this baby will be mine. What did I do? I think about my mom and her parents, how hard they worked, and how few times I experienced material gifts from either or both. The broken dinnerware my mom let us eat off of, the ripped, hand-me-downs, the hand-me-downs from her parents because their hand-me-downs weren't fit to wear, the handmade, pressed sashes Mandy made with cloth she had sewn herself, the notes written during the day about the things she liked and wanted. The things I held on to from my childhood are the simpler things, the more tangible things. Years and years of not wishing for things, of sitting back and being grateful for what I have, was an easy way to cope with the years of not having many things. But now, I want M 3e33713323
